CONTENTS

INTRODUCTION

SUBJECT OF OUR STUDY: RELIGIOUS SOCIOLOGY AND THE THEORY OF KNOWLEDGE PAGE I.--Principal subject of the book: analysis of the simplest religion known to determine the elementary forms of the religious life--Why they are more easily found and explained in the primitive religions
1

II.--Secondary subject of research: the genesis of the fundamental notions of thought or the categories--Reasons for believing that their origin is religious and consequently social--How a way of restating the theory of knowledge is thus seen 9

BOOK I

PRELIMINARY QUESTIONS

CHAPTER I

DEFINITION OF RELIGIOUS PHENOMENA AND OF RELIGION

Usefulness of a preliminary definition of religion; method to be followed in seeking this definition--Why the usual definitions should be examined first 23

I.--Religion defined by the supernatural and mysterious-- Criticism: the notion of mystery is not primitive 24

II.--Religion defined in connection with the idea of God or a spiritual being.--Religions without gods--Rites in deistic religions which imply no idea of divinity 29

III.--Search for a positive definition--Distinction between beliefs and rites--Definition of beliefs--First characteristic: division of things between sacred and profane--Distinctive characteristics of this definition--Definition of rites in relation to beliefs--Definition of religion 36

IV.--Necessity of another characteristic to distinguish magic from religion--The idea of the Church--Do individualistic religions exclude the idea of a Church? 42

CHAPTER II

LEADING CONCEPTIONS OF THE ELEMENTARY RELIGION

I.--_Animism_

Distinction of animism and naturism 48

I.--The three theses of animism: Genesis of the idea of the soul; Formation of the idea of spirits; Transformation of the cult of spirits into the cult of nature 49

II.--Criticism of the first thesis--Distinction of the idea of the soul from that of a double--Dreams do not account for the idea of the soul 55

III.--Criticism of the second thesis--Death does not explain the transformation of a soul into a spirit--The cult of the souls of the dead is not primitive 60

IV.--Criticism of the third thesis--The anthropomorphic instinct--Spencer's criticism of it; reservations on this point--Examination of the facts by which this instinct is said to be proved--Difference between a soul and the spirits of nature--Religious anthropomorphism is not primitive 65

V.--Conclusion: animism reduces religion to nothing more than a system of hallucinations 68

CHAPTER III

LEADING CONCEPTIONS OF THE ELEMENTARY RELIGION--(_continued_)

II.--_Naturism_

History of the theory 71

I.--Exposition of Max Müller's naturism 73

II.--If the object of religion is to express natural forces, it is hard to see how it has maintained itself, for it expresses them in an erroneous manner--Pretended distinction between religion and mythology 78

III.--Naturism does not explain the division of things into sacred and profane 84

CHAPTER IV

TOTEMISM AS AN ELEMENTARY RELIGION

I.--Brief history of the question of totemism 88

II.--Reasons of method for which our study will be given specially to the totemism of Australia--The place which will be given to facts from America 93

BOOK II

THE ELEMENTARY BELIEFS

CHAPTER I

TOTEMIC BELIEFS

The Totem as Name and as Emblem

I.--Definition of the clan--The totem as name of the clan--Nature of the things which serve as totems--Ways in which the totem is acquired--The totems of phratries; of matrimonial classes 102

II.--The totem as emblem--Totemic designs engraved or carved upon objects; tatooings or designs upon the body 113

III.--Sacred character of the totemic emblem--The churinga--The nurtunja--The waninga--Conventional character of totemic emblems 119

The Totemic Animal and Man

I.--Sacred character of the totemic animals--Prohibition to eat them, kill them or pick the totemic plants--Different moderations given these prohibitions--Prohibition of contact--The sacred character of the animal is less marked than that of the emblem 128

II.--The man--His relationship with the totemic animal or plant--Different myths explaining this relationship--The sacred character of the man is more apparent in certain parts of the organism: the blood, hair, etc.--How this character varies with sex and age--Totemism is not plant or animal worship 134

The Cosmological System of Totemism and the Idea of Class

I.--The classification of things into clans, phratries and classes 141

II.--Genesis of the notion of class: the first classifications of things take their forms from society--Differences between the sentiment of the differences of things and the idea of class-- Why this is of social origin 144

III.--Religious significance of these classifications: all of the things classified into a clan partake of the nature of the totem and its sacred character--The cosmological system of totemism--Totemism as the tribal religion 148

CHAPTER IV

TOTEMIC BELIEFS--(_end_)

The Individual Totem and the Sexual Totem

I.--Individual totem as a forename; its sacred character-- Individual totem as personal emblem--Bonds between the man and his individual totem--Relations with the collective totem 157

II.--The totems of sexual groups--Resemblances and differences with the collective and individual totems--Their tribal nature 165

CHAPTER V

ORIGINS OF THESE BELIEFS

Critical Examination of Preceding Theories

I.--Theories which derive totemism from a previous religion: from the ancestor cult (Wilken and Tylor); from the nature cult (Jevons)--Criticism of these theories 168

II.--Theories which derive collective totemism from individual totemism--Origins attributed by these theories to the individual totem (Frazer, Boas, Hill Tout)--Improbability of these hypotheses--Reasons showing the priority of the collective totem 172

III.--Recent theory of Frazer: _conceptional_ and local totemism--The begging of the question upon which it rests--The religious character of the totem is denied--Local totemism is not primitive 180

IV.--Theory of Lang: that the totem is only a name--Difficulties in explaining the religious character of totemic practices from this point
